Aporia is published twice each year by the Department of Philosophy at Brigham Young University and is dedicated to recognizing exemplary philosophical work at the undergraduate level. The spring issue each year includes outstanding philosophical essays submitted by undergraduate philosophy students from around the world, along with the winning essays of the annual David H. Yarn Philosophical Essay Competition, which is open to BYU undergraduates only. The winners of the Yarn Competition are selected by a faculty committee independent of the student editors, who make all other publishing decisions. The fall issue is published online and consists of papers selected by the editorial staff. Submissions are welcome from all undergraduate students, both at BYU and elsewhere.

The Aporia staff is especially grateful to those who support and make possible this journal. Special thanks go to Professor Dennis Rasmussen, chair of the Department of Philosophy, for his encouragement and assistance, and to Linda Hunter Adams of the Humanities Publications Center. Aporia is funded by a generous contribution from the David H. Yarn Endowment. Those wishing to contribute to this fund may do so by contacting the BYU Department of Philosophy.

Opinions expressed herein are those of the respective authors, and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editors, the Philosophy Department, or Brigham Young University.
