

Aporia

A Student Journal of Philosophy

Brigham Young University
1993

Editor

Wayne Le Cheminant

Editorial Staff

Amanda Benson
Scott Hendricks
Angela D. Wentz

Student philosophy journals seem to be something of a rarity, as are philosophers in general. We are pleased that Aporia: A Student Journal of Philosophy still has life and is now in its third year. Those who started the journal three years ago should be pleased with the solid foundation that they gave to this journal and we hope that this tradition will be carried on as Aporia comes upon its fourth year and beyond.

This year's journal contains four excellent essays. We have two on Plato and two on contemporary philosophy. It is our goal to provide students with a forum wherein a broad range of philosophical topics can be explored. Thus, in the forthcoming issues of Aporia we hope to be able to publish papers dealing with issues from ancient to contemporary philosophy, and treating the subjects from both the "analytic" and "continental" traditions. While we do not necessarily espouse the belief that philosophy can be treated in a pot pourri fashion, we do hold that it is important to gain the insights and perspectives from various viewpoints and traditions.

Aporia has as its aim to publish the best work by philosophy students from both BYU and other universities. Those who would like their papers to be considered for publication in the next issue of Aporia should submit their papers no later than March 31, 1994. Papers should be sent to the following address:

Aporia Editor
3196 JKHB
Philosophy Department
Brigham Young University
Provo, UT 84602

We would like to express appreciation to the following for their continuing support of this journal: Honors and General Education and the BYU Philosophy Department. We would also like to thank Linda Adams Hunter of the Humanities Publication Center and James E. Faulconer of the Philosophy Department for both their encouragement and their commitment to student publications.

Aporia

A Student Journal of Philosophy

Brigham Young University

1993

Plato's Theories of Forms in the Phaedo and the Republic

Scott Hendricks.....1

Heidegger and Theology

Nathan Andersen.....13

The Elenchus and Ineradicable Truth

Dennis Potter.....23

Constructive Empiricism: Observability and the Epistemic Community

Angela D. Wentz.....35